The
REFLECTOR

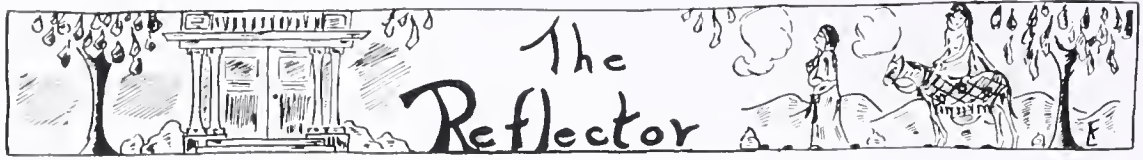

1929

VOLUME XXI

*PUBLISHED BY THE JUNE SENIOR CLASS OF CENTRAL HIGH SCHOOL
GREENSBORO, NORTH CAROLINA*

Prologue

*Whan that September with its winds did blow,
And brynge to mind the thoughts of ice and snow,
Than girls and boys did longen in hir corages
To wenden on quite distant pilgrimages;
To seken deep and helpful bits of knowledge,
That hem would holpen when they were in college.
They gathered at the inn, the hostelrye,
Well nine and sixty in the campaign;
True guides they had that went with them along,
And taught them facts and many a merry song.
So now to tellen you with a few words
Of things they saw and of the tales they heard—.*

Dedication

*To old G. H. S.—
whose walls have harbored our high school days—
    laughing, happy, youthful days—
whose halls have faithfully kept our inmost secrets,
whose rooms have sheltered our young dreams and ambitions,
    whose tired frame
    has bravely stood the taunting jests
    of "more hopeful" students—
    to old G. H. S.
we fondly dedicate this story of our pilgrimage.*

Pilgrims on Parade

When that the warm September sun shone down,
And youthful hearts did long to romp and clown,
There came upon a day a sound of woes,
To those who summer's youths so sweet did know,
And that dread summons stopped the happy play.
—Be joyous, little ones, while yet you may—
Thus sadly when that dreaded time befell,
We heeded mournfully the scholars' bell
Which pointed out to us the term's first day.
To High School we went meekly on our way.
In this outstanding seat of higher thought—
Omitting all destructions time had wrought,
Since buildings then were in decadent state—
We timidly did wait to meet our fate;
And all of us did feel so very lost,
Excepting two quite winsome maids who tossed
Sweet smiles around, which sadly did affect
So many lads—but this, one would expect
Of both Ruth Barton and our Miss De Vault,
For neither ever could be made to halt.
Becoming third semester in due time—
For some it was a rather tedious climb—
We all began the usual display
Of imbecilities to suit the play
Called "High School Life," of which the second act
Is fitted more to fancy than to fact.
Then Norman Brown and Charlie Crews with boards
So eagerly joined sophomoric hordes
That Ethel Cobb and little "Libby" Bray
In great affright rushed hurriedly away.
'Twas at this time that "Caesar" gave us hours
Of work. At last we buried him 'mid showers
Of tears, and were promoted with great joy
To fill a place where we had best employ
Our time. That year our Albert—"Shag"—made known
His business sense that was so ably shown.
And then Pomona High School caught on fire,
And thirty boys and girls we did acquire.
And so we came at last to senior ranks;
To patient teachers owe we many thanks.
We'd learned something of Latin and of French.

Pilgrims on Parade—Continued

And were familiar with the office bench.
We'd raised among us many famous men,
The deeds of whom you'll hear 'gain and again.
Some sought the mysteries of mathematics:
While others learned the art of acrobatics.
Clyde Norcum edited our publication:
And Harold Cone, distinguished in oration,
With Elizabeth Boyst won high rating,
Defeating Winston-Salem in debating.
Our wrestling team was captained by a Pope
With whom opponents found it hard to cope.
'Twas at this time that long hair was the fad,
But Nancee Hay cut hers and made us mad.
And during this last year at a stunt night
"Lib" Hester, in a play staged by Torchlight,
Presented a romantic role so well
That some of our young Gilberts really fell.
A rollicking party was given by teachers so dear
With dancing, contests, some eats, and much cheer.
They say that Roscoe Marsh, to his surprise,
Received the most important boobie prize.
And so our senior year has passed away
Amid the last sweet hours of turbulent May.
In retrospection of these years we find
That through our pedagogues, hard-boiled, and kind,
We've learned a little language, more of life,
And knowledge, handy for existence's strife,
Of those high creeds that our instructors taught.
At graduation all that they have wrought
Is not cast by as are our high school days
But having grown a part of us, it stays.

The longed-for day has fin'ly come when we
Our journey must begin—through vale, o'er lea—
But 'fore we part with friends long lov'd we would Distribute 'mong them bundles bad and good.
There's one for "Mr. Charley", our good friend,
And one for teachers who until the end
A helping hand will give. And to our school
So old, as has forever been the rule
We leave a bundle small—for soon in ruins
Will be the structure, caused from our bad doin's.
We'll leave and you will march to new abodes
And pupils all be gladdened by your loads.

Pilgrims on Parade—Continued

Now let us view the contents there within.
 Sigh not if all our honors you don't win.
 A bag for Mr. Phillips has therein
 A questionnaire to ask, "Where have you been?"
 And too, inside this package you will see
 That seniors placed a large and handsome fee
 To pay for many lost and stolen books.
 And to our dean, Miss Mitchell, if she looks,
 There is a periscope to help her find
 The boys and girls who 'round the corner wind
 And vanish from her sight. Miss Walker and Miss Blackmon get a sound-proof room so grand.
 Louis Brooks hands out, to light your forest school
 His Torchlight candle—you he would not fool.
 Old school, you get a pass to some museum.
 Through constant wear and tear you've lost your vim.
 Lucille Ferree and Mary Hoyle are sad
 To give the Torchlight members all their bad
 And shameful grades. A harem large Pete Fitch
 Has left to "Casey" Jones, who can bewitch
 Them all. Lee Whiteheart leaves his alibies
 To Earnest Hunt. Alas, without his lies
 What will he do? Claire Hartsook gives unto Charles Stout
 Her art of riding horses 'round about.
 To Ad'laide Fortune, Carmen Patterson
 Gives her romantic dreams—they're lots of fun.
 Now, Nancy Thompson if you take good care
 Of William Haines, a prize so very rare,
 Virginia Alexander'll leave to you
 A group of art collections old and new.
 Here, Rachel Lipscomb's placed her quiet ways
 For Dorothy Phoenix. Edna Sockwell's rays
 Of golden sunshine curls to Margaret Bowles
 Do go. Arlindo Cate claims that bag holds
 A book so rare which tells how to express
 One's love in music. And, he does confess
 To Douglas Long it goes. Now Charley Rives
 His pictures great to High Life staff he leaves.
 Charles Wilhelm gives James Strickland all he knows
 Of Latin. Raymond Beckham's long coat goes
 To Sidney Stern. And Mary Hobgood's eyes
 So flirting go to Miss Carlyle—she's wise.
 Her search for ideal friends Louise Cheek leaves
 To Mary Turner. Now a sigh she heaves.

Pilgrims on Parade—Continued

His moustache which consists of pink hairs ten
The Mr. Avery leaves to "Red" Goodwin.
Miss Grogan, here's some green suspenders gay
From Mr. Taylor. It was learned one day
That Lizzie Adams wanted Harriet
To have her Torchlight pin. Now Dixon's set
Of "Teeney Tales" belong to our dear friend,
Miss Tillett. And the hairpins which have pinned
The curly locks of Madeleine belong
To Louise Parker. Here's where Norris Long
Plays wise and gives Miss Grogan his black shirt
But will not give those matches up—'twould hurt.
Kate Woodburn leaves French knowledge, quite a lot,
To Janice. And, in case Miss Rue cannot Get through the crowded districts of the school,
Our "Kitty" Lamb gives her the art and rule
Of how it's done. Miss Barbour so desires
That "Trudie" Carver have her secret fires
Of longing—to be tall. The thing that haunts
Miss Mims, which is her history book, she wants
Miss Sara Clegg to have. Jane Stockard here—
Miss Lucy Crocker's left her ways so dear
And saintly-like to you. Grace Hobbs you are
The owner of some poetry now. Don't mar
The beauty of it—Zona is the kind,
Proud giver. Lydia, right here I find,
Her daily Duke epistles for the class
Of sophomores has left. Now if you'll pass
Them 'round, there'll be enough for all, I'm sure.
Miss Nau's bad pranks "The Council" must endure.
Miss Eva Harris from this bag I bring
From Emma Hardee, "Hamlet"—for your string.
To Lillian Tye the name "Unconscious" goes.
'Tis Frances Hobgood's gift to her. She loathes
Her curls so Sarah Bosher hands them down,
Without her sighs or tears, to Jackie Brown.
Before we hasten on our journey gay
There are a few more things which now I'll say.
To Nathan Lipscomb, Marg'rite Wells would give
The freckles 'cross her nose.

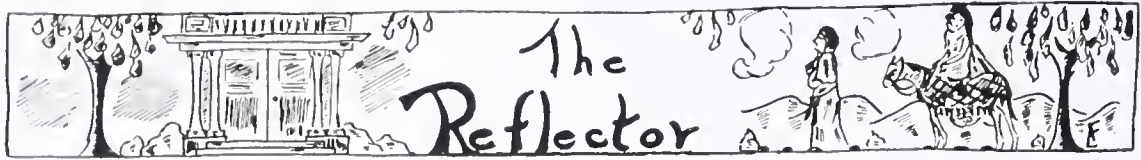

We vowed to live

A happy life throughout our journey long—
And on we travelled as one joyous throng.

Pilgrims on Parade—Continued

At last our destiny drew near and all
 Beheld the battlements and spires so tall.
 We would our steps make fast and enter soon
 The town. But Harold Cone, whose greatest boon
 Was that of prophesying, stopped us straight
 And would our fortunes tell us ere the gate
 We 'proached. Now Mary Long undignified
 Rushed through the throng, and quite aloud she cried,
 "Old man, tell me my fate." "I see thee, tall,
 Displaying fashions in a great wide hall."
 On posters Mary"—just a Byrde—"I see
 A second Clara Bow in 'Redhead Bee.'
 For you, deep tones from organs come, Miss Wells,
 While Bernard Ahman, decked in silv'ry bells,
 The 'light fantastic' does. On great Broadway
 Clem Campbell plays poor Hamlet every day,
 And lives again the shy Ophelia—played
 By thee, my Nannie Belle, so quiet and staid."
 To Raymond Beckham—"Your desire you'll see
 Fulfilled: for many happy years you'll be
 A judge of beauty in those contests at
 Miami Beach, and you may tip your hat
 To each May Queen. A fac'try rises up
 For thee, Bob Scott; you'll soon invent a cup
 Whose fender guards the nose from burns when you
 Would see a miss and drink your coffee, too.
 In lights of red I see a sign so gay:
 It spells the words, 'Max Holland's Cabaret'.
 Within Dot Bennet's orchestra plays bold,
 New jazz—as 'Silver Threads Among the Gold'.
 And Everett Stamper sings refrains in tones
 So deep and low that all the very bones
 Of list'ners quake. You shan't go far, my son,"—
 To Charlie Hartsook,—“for you are the one
 Whom Fate has chosen to begin a chain
 Of beauty parlors where one buys that rain-
 Proof rouge.” Lorena Coffey ask'd her fate.
 “You know yours now: already you your mate
 Have found. To gay Hawaii goeth Bill
 As 'Missionary Hobbs'. May fate fulfill
 His one desire—to save the souls of those Hawaiian girls. And many maids will pose
 For thee, Carlyle, when you've become a great
 Photographer of ladies of estate.”
 The prophet's eyes looked far beyond the hills;
 We waited, hoping all for more new thrills.

Pilgrims on Parade—Continued

"A court room rises up before my eyes;
 I see a woman—Rhesa Lee—that wise
 Young lawyer. Loud and long she does defend
 Her client. Henry Weiland doth contend
 With Mary Bailey who is suing him
 For breach of promise. There with faces grim
 Sit Mary Leet and Bella taking notes
 For 'Scandal Sheets', their paper. Bright new boats
 Are sailing 'long the western coast, and down
 Within the pit Miss Anna Lyon, brown
 And sunburned, watches fishes all day long,
 And happy thus she sings a fishy song.
 Beneath soft lights I see a girl and boy—
 Eliz'beth Wood and Earl Harlee with joy
 Of living thus are cooing soft and low
 The words of love. And flitting to and fro
 Is Cupid—really Carter Williams—. 'Queen
 Of Hearts' they call this play in which are seen
 Two famous stars of stage and screen—our Earl
 And 'Wush'. And down in front I see a girl
 Who weeping sees the play. The tears fall fast
 As Kate—our dazzl'ing blonde—reviews her past,
 So wicked, awful! Kermit, Irvin, Bill—
 'Petit' Bill Cooper—all go back to fill
 The shoes of teachers grown too old to teach
 At G. H. S., our high school. On the beach
 Our Nell and Mary Moore a weinie stand
 Have jointly 'stablished. And there too our bland
 'Upchurch'—or rather Kenneth Church—is guard
 Of life. I see him at his task—'tis hard
 To drag the buxom Sylvia in to shore.
 Juanita Day is doomed to have no more
 Than she desires—a red-head husband strong
 And bold. And poor but happy they will long
 Pay board in Mad'leine Causey's boarding-house."
 The prophet hushed. We all stepped forth to douse
 Our hands in sacred waters held within
 A crystal bowl. And thus each school-made sin
 Was washed away. Then quietly with the dawn
 We slipped within the long-sought gate— and on.

PASTIMES

Homespun

Realizing the value of some direct means of cultivating literary talent among high school students, a group of literary enthusiasts under the leadership of W. R. Wunsch founded in 1925, a school magazine. This publication, which was given the appropriate title of Homespun, became, under the editorship of Helen Felder, a magazine of national prominence.

For the next two years, under the editorship of Carlton Wilder, and supervision of Miss Laura Tillett, Homespun broadened its scope and demonstrated the literary possibilities of a high school group.

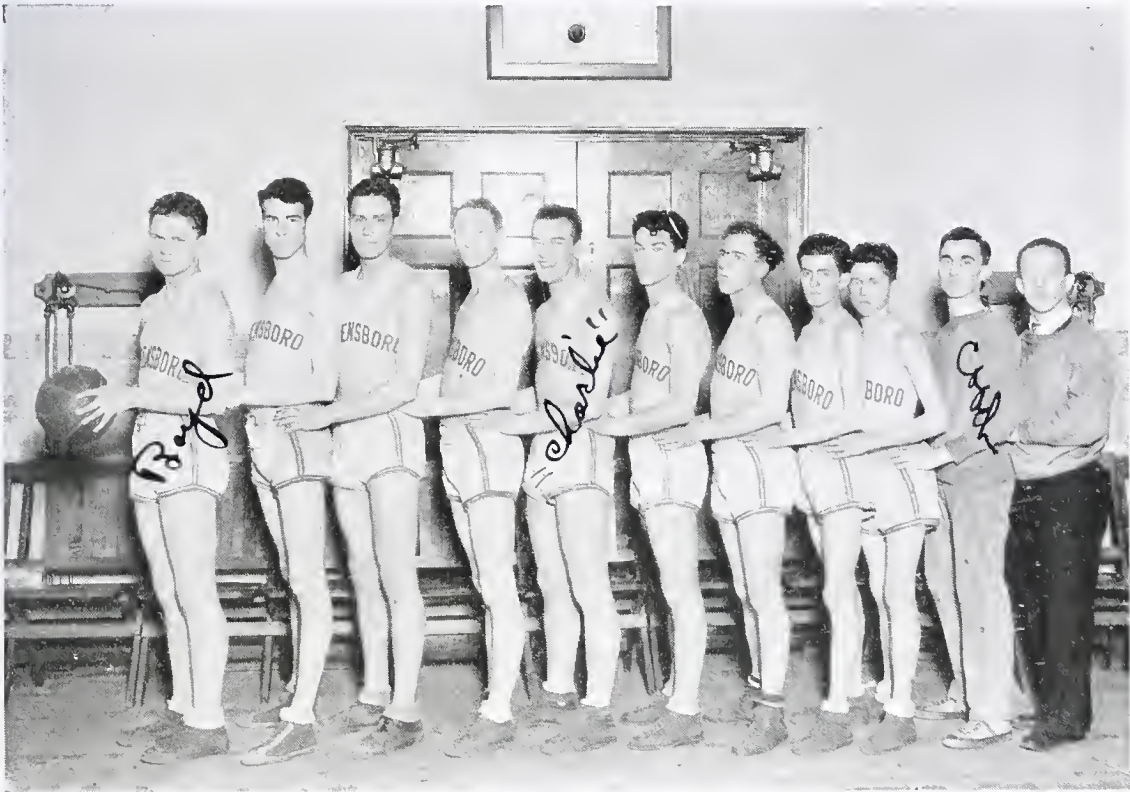

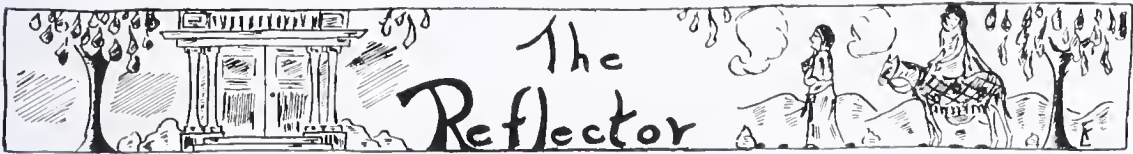

During the past year, under the editorship of Louis Brooks, Homespun has endeavored to develop new writers.

It is hoped that in the future the circle of contributors will be enlarged so that the magazine will successfully carry out its purpose of discovering and training literary talent in the students.

Triangle Debating Team

The query for the triangular debate this year was: "Resolved, that the the United States should join the World Court." Henry Weiland and Louis Brooks, of the affirmative, debated High Point at Greensboro. They defeated the visitors by a two-to-one decision. Elizabeth Boyst and Harold Cone, of the negative, unanimously defeated Winston-Salem at Winston-Salem. Both the affirmative and the negative teams went to Chapel Hill to compete for the Aycock Memorial award. In competition with debating teams from fifty-nine other schools Greensboro High School was given honorable mention in having the second best negative debaters.

Boy's Basketball Team

Coach Shepard had only one letter man, Captain Boyd Morris, upon which to build a team. They were able to stop State Freshman 13 to 11. The first game at the State Tourney was dropped to Wilson after a hard fight. The scores for some of the games are as follows:

Boxing and Wrestling Team

In spite of the fact that boxing and wrestling are new sports at Greensboro, a large squad reported to Coaches Coltrane, Bobbit and Betts at the opening of the season. Work-outs were held daily at the Y. M. C. A.

Neither team had many experienced men, but comparatively strong teams were built up. The boxing team was composed of the following: Justice, Captain, Horney, Faison, Shaffer, Ramsey, Moore, Moorefield and May. The wrestling team: Pope, Captain, Plummer, Betts, Allen, Spencer, Blackwood and Collins.

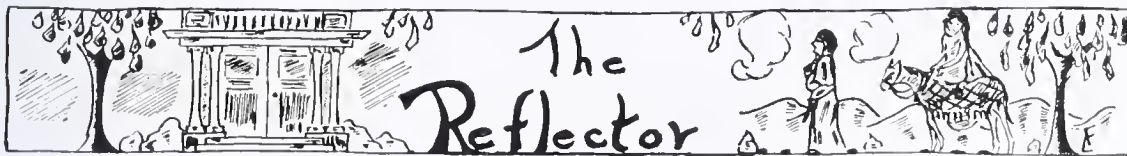

Boxing and wrestling have become very popular this season, and it is hoped it will soon be one of the major sports at G. H. S.

Baseball Team

Coaches Coltrane and Johnson had seven letter men as a nucleus of this year's diamond squad. They whipped the team into one of the fastest aggregations ever to represent G. H. S. Greensboro has won some decisive victories and all games lost have been hard fought.

Captain Whiteheart has had a great season at first and Curtis, the mainstay of the pitching staff, has turned in a good record.

Track Team

Captain "Red" Goodwin was the outstanding sprint man and one of the best pole-vaulters of this year's team. He placed either first or second in every meet he entered.

"Nick" Nicholson, the find of the year, placed in four events in the Civitan meet, after having broken the State record for the broad-jump against the Carolina freshman.

Johnson won the high-jump in the State and Civitan meets.

Lindeman and Bradley did well in the 440; Bradley, Cordle, and Knight in the 880; Gregory and Carver in the mile; Horney in the weights; and Norman in the pole-vault. Gunter did especially well in the 300. The Greensboro medley relay team won the trophy for the third time, Cordle and Knight playing prominent parts.

Patient: My wife says I talk in my sleep.
doctor. What should I do?

Doctor: Nothing you shouldn't.

A misunderstanding:

Father (who has taken his daughter to the show): I'm sorry I brought you now.
Rachel, this is hardly a picture for a girl of your age.

Rachel: Oh, that's all right, Dad. It'll probably liven up a little before the end.

Poor Settle—Education got him.

What happened? Did he have a breakdown?

No, he blew the dust off his text-books
and choked to death.

I noticed when you passed Charlie that he never returned your salutation.

Rachel: Oh, he sits across from me on class, and he never returns anything.

Charles R.: Curiosity killed a cat.

Lottie: What did the cat want to know?

Making a Home Livable

Did it ever occur to you that electric service, which, more than anything else, makes a home livable, has constantly declined in cost to the customer even while practically all other commodities have constantly increased in price?

Electricity makes a home livable not only because it brings brightness and cleanliness and health, but because it relieves the housewife of so much of the drudgery of house work that she is able to have more time for recreation and other activities which mean so much for the happiness and comfort of the family.

A wise woman has said that electric service promotes a good disposition and that good dispositions are essential to happy homes.

It's worth thinking about anyway.

when greensboro becomes of age

—After outfitting the boys and girls of Greensboro for 24 years, we feel perfectly qualified in filling ever clothes need for the boy and girl of to-day. We are thoroughly aware that the modern boy and girl is quite as style-conscious as his or her parents and have considered this in selecting summer merchandise for these departments.

HEAD COLDS — melt Vicks in a bowl of hot water and inhale the vapors. Also snuff some up the nose.

CHILDREN'S COLDS—best treated without dosing. Just rub on Vicks.

CHEST COLDS—rub on Vicks at bedtime—it acts 2 ways at once (1) vaporized by the warmth of the body and inhaled (2) absorbed through the skin.

100 Million People 400 Million Colds

According to government statistics this is the number of colds annually in the United States—each person has an average of three and seven-tenths colds a year.

Although common colds are not so dangerous in themselves, they may "pave the way" for more serious troubles.

A neglected cold may result, for instance, in any one of a number of diseases—sinusitis, deafness, abscess of the middle ear, mastoiditis, or even lead to those dread diseases—meningitis, pneumonia or tuberculosis.

You can do your "bit" toward lowering the average of colds if you check your cold at the start with Vicks. Keep a jar handy and snuff a little up the nostrils several times during the day, then at bedtime apply Vicks over the throat and chest and cover with warm flannel.
